Community Sergeant Update

PS Stephen Granger

Crime in our rural communities is a policing priority in the Scottish Borders. The issue of rural properties being targets for theft of machinery, particularly quad bikes, unfortunately continues despite our local officers continuing to patrol and conduct checks. Using information passed from the community enables us to develop our intelligence picture and focus police activity. Criminals often undertake cross-border recce in the days and weeks before crime occurs and make unannounced visits to farms or other isolated locations on the premise of looking for scrap or some other false guise. The more alert residents can be to this sort of behaviour, the better, and by sharing their concerns and information with us, the more chance we stand of deterring criminals and detecting them when they do commit crime.

With this in mind always contact police immediately if you see suspicious activity on or near your property:

- Use 999 if it is ongoing
- Otherwise call 101
- Or you can report the matter via the police Scotland website.

As I have referred to in previous reports our community policing teams have been engaged in conducting crime prevention surveys at rural locations upon request. These visits offer up not only free-of-charge security advice but also deliver free practical solutions in the form of signage and security marking kits. These kits are used to mark valuable machinery and quad bikes with uniquely identifiable 'DNA'. This allows equipment to be identified as stolen and returned to the owner if they are found at a later date.

If anyone wishes such a visit to be conducted by police this can be requested via emailing the Community Policing Team Mailbox at the end of this report.

Staying on the rural crime theme, as part of the National Wildlife Crime Prevention and Scottish Partnership Against Rural Crime (SPARC) Strategy officers have been engaged in days of action looking to deter/detect incidents of hare coursing. Most recently between Saturday 19th March 2022 and Sunday 20th March 2022 across East Lothian and Scottish Borders local officers working with officers from the Tweed Commission and council carried out patrols across identified hot spot areas previously targeted by person's hare coursing. Positive engagement was made with farmers, including crime prevention advice relating to the theft of quad bikes across the area. Between September 2021 and March 2022, 14 such days of action have been carried out in targeted areas. This multi-agency crime prevention activity has resulted in over a 55% reduction in hare coursing incidents reported to police over the last 3 years within the policing division.

Local Policing Priorities

1. Protecting most vulnerable
2. Reducing violence and Anti-Social Behaviour
3. Reducing acquisitive crime
4. Improving road safety
