Community Sergeant Update

PS Stephen Granger

With the return of the warmer weather it is good to see more people out and about, including cyclists and horse riders. There comes with this the added responsibility on all road users to ensure they keep themselves and other road users as safe as possible.

- Drivers should pass horses at no more than 10mph and at two meters distance. Drivers should give motorcyclists, cyclists and pedestrians who are walking in the road at least as much room as you would when overtaking a car.
- Horse riders should keep to the left, abide by one way streets, never ride more than two abreast, and single file on narrow roads.
- Cyclists and horse riders should be vigilant throughout their rides so they are aware of all approaching traffic.
- Cyclists should inform horse riders if they are approaching from the rear by giving a clear greeting or 'bike' - horses are far less likely to be spooked by voice than by seeing presence suddenly next to them. Cyclists should also slow right down and be prepared to stop when approaching horses from either direction.
- All road users are entitled to use the roads safely and respect should be shown to all.
